ISPMCON-2023: Experts outline need for ensuring patient-centric research

LUCKNOW: A three-day conference on personalised medicine titled 'Redefining the Future of Medicine' concluded at the Era University on Sunday with experts outlining the need for ensuring patient-centric research.

The conference ISPMCON-2023 was organised under the aegis of Indian Society of Personalised Medicine by university's department of personalised and molecular medicine.

Chief guest prof Lindsay Brown from Australia in his address mentioned that young people should ensure that knowledge gained in the conference be put to practical use.

Prof Hari Sharma in his presidential address said Indian Society of Personalised Medicine could contribute a lot by exchanging information with experts. "Goal of our society should be to broaden horizons and collaborate nationally and internationally," he said.

Pro vice chancellor of Era University prof Farzana Mahdi said a conference of personalised and precision medicine would be conducted next year as well.

Award for best oral presentation were given to Dr Sonal Gupta, Anveshika Manoj, Viqar Agha. Best poster presentation award was won by Dr Bhavya Gupta, Maryam Haq, Dr Azhar Mumtaz. Young Scientist Award was presented to Shrikant Verma from department of personalised and molecular medicine, Era University. During ISPMCON-2023, more than 20 invited lectures, 5 young scientist award presentations, 52 posters and 26 free papers were presented. HTC
